

CAREER ARC

Baxter started in Big 4 audit at PwC Houston covering upstream E&P; clients, then crossed to corporate finance at Diversified Energy Company where she rose from Senior Accountant to Controller over five years. She moved to the PE side at Crestview Partners in 2022, managing portfolio company financial reporting and operational KPIs across their energy portfolio. The through-line: she keeps moving closer to the operator seat — audit to corporate to PE oversight — and the VP Finance role at Peak 10 would complete that arc.

READY-MADE OPENERS

Easy start → "Your path from PwC to DEC to Crestview is interesting — each move brought you closer to the actual operations. Tell me about what's driving the next step."

Going deeper → "You've seen PDP acquisition finance from the audit side, the operator side, and the PE side. What's the one thing operators consistently get wrong that drives PE sponsors crazy?"

Bold move → "Peak 10 is a 40-well operator with an ABS structure and PE sponsors. This is not a corporate finance role — it's building the plane while flying it. What makes you think that's the right fit?"

CONVERSATION TOPICS

- Diversified Energy's PDP Model
DEC runs the closest public-company analog to Peak 10's strategy — she'll have direct experience with PDP acquisition finance at scale. Ask what she learned about modeling mature PDP decline curves at DEC that the market consistently gets wrong.
- PE Reporting from the Inside
She's been on the PE oversight side at Crestview — she knows exactly what your sponsors want to see and when. Ask what the most common reporting gaps are that frustrate PE sponsors — and how she'd fix them from the operator side.
- Why Leave PE for an Operator?
This is the key question — moving from Crestview to a 40-well operator is a big shift. Understanding her motivation tells you everything. Be direct: what's pulling you toward the operator seat vs. staying on the investor side?
- ABS and Structured Finance Experience
Peak 10's ABS waterfall is a core financial product — she needs to be comfortable with structured debt. Walk through a simplified version of the ABS structure and gauge her comfort level.
